

Student Success Process

The SSP is a proven process that enables ALL students to pass state mandated tests.

- Testing and remediation occur before students are tested on state standards
- Additional time is given to students who need it
- All of the basic skills are mastered
- The SSP uses data to provide detailed information for teachers on each student's skill on every Indiana Standard
- Enrichment is given those who master their basic skills

The Student Success Process (SSP)

SSP is a teaching process developed by Indiana teachers for Indiana students.

SSP allows all children to learn state standards and pass state mandated tests.

The SSP Identifies areas of weakness, provides additional time for learning and demonstrates mastery

Everyone Succeeds

The Student Success Process focuses on the success of each student. It is not about "covering" a text book. It is about helping everyone master the basics.

The SSP discovers individual students' weaknesses, provides teachers and students with additional time to correct the weaknesses, and provides an immediate chance for students to demonstrate their increased knowledge.

This process has helped tens of thousands of students across the country to show real educational gains.

Discover Weaknesses Early

All students are tested to find out which Indiana Standards need attention. This is done using a comprehensive test, the results of which are used to create an Instructional Calendar which focuses on the weakest skills. Short tests are then given every two weeks to assess skills on a specific standard and determine which students could benefit from tutoring on each skill.

Catching Up

Students who are not competent on a given skill are retaught that specific skill for two weeks while others are given enrichment exercises on the same standard. No one is left behind.

Demonstrate Success

Students are retested on the specific skills to confirm their mastery. Students who receive enrichment are assessed to show their increased knowledge.

Celebration

After students have shown they have mastered the skill, everyone celebrates to show their support of each other and of the process!

Many teachers and administrators have shown their dedication to children by embarking upon the Student Success Process. It requires them to work harder, to grade more tests, and to modify their daily schedules. They have done this because the evidence of the effectiveness of this process is now overwhelming. A growing number of educators across Indiana are using SSP to help their students master state standards and perform well on state mandated tests. They want ALL children to succeed.
